Heya all, I changed to a new forum, unfortunately SMF is not supported anymore with the CMS I'm using, maybe in the future it will. But the versions are getting to far apart and more unstable, I already lost a few members that didn't transfer back. But thats probably ok since theres a lot of spammers in there.

I'll try to work on this a bit more, between the house, GF, mom, and myself, I don't have as much time as I used too, but I'll work on it.

Hi everyone,

I joined this forum because I have a boyfriend (straight, and I'm female) who likes to cross-dress. He's a great person, and I care about him very much. I would like simply to learn more about your experiences and feelings about cross-dressing, especially from those who are similar to him - he's straight, quite masculine (but in touch with his feminine side, obviously), it's a private thing for him (ie, no parades! :P) and he could be the guy next door, so to speak. I'm one of the few people he has shared this with, and I appreciate him very much, so, though I already am supportive (gave him one of my boas for Christmas -- feathers i mean, not a boa constrictor :lol:), I'd just like to learn more about this and how i can be as supportive as possible. I think everyone should have the freedom to dress however they like -- it would be a much more interesting world!

Thanks everyone!

ps. I think women have it so much easier in the clothes department (except, that is, for the sizing of things, which is totally off-the-wall, no consistency, which probably many of you already know) because we can get away with wearing almost anything and at most might be considered "eccentric".
